

Read the given passage carefully to answer the following questions. Each question will have five alternatives as its answer. Choose the correct option as your answer.

Fishing is a significant industry in Korea, particularly in coastal areas like Jeju Island. The waters around these regions are abundant with various marine life, making them ideal for fishing activities. Local fishermen primarily target species like mackerel, squid, and the Jeju hairtail, which are highly valued in Korean cuisine.

The life of a fisherman involves starting their day early, often before sunrise, to take advantage of the best fishing conditions. They use a combination of traditional and modern techniques to maximize their catch. This includes using nets and lines that are designed to be effective for specific types of fish.

The fishing process is closely tied to the seasons and weather. Spring usually offers the richest haul due to favorable ocean conditions and the life cycle of fish. However, winter fishing can be challenging due to rough seas and cold weather, which test the resilience and skill of the fishermen.

On the boat, teamwork is crucial. Fishermen must work together _____ operate the equipment, haul in their catch, and manage their vessel safely. The term 'bloster', often used among fishermen, refers to someone exceptionally skilled at handling the most challenging conditions at sea.

After a day at sea, the catch is brought back to shore and sold at local markets. This not only provides income for the fishermen but also supports the local economy by supplying fresh seafood.
